

Marie Feindt DiGiovanni has a personal interest in adult literacy after providing legal services to the community for twenty years. The ability of each person to participate and engage in life decisions such as estate planning and Medicaid planning is vital for an individual's personal and financial well-being. Adult literacy is linked to health literacy and financial literacy which makes it a cornerstone in everyone's life. Marie is a proponent of lifelong learning.

Marie works as an attorney and as a fiduciary handling financial power of attorney, healthcare powers of attorney, estate planning and administration, estate accountings, trust administration, trust accountings and special needs trust administration and tax related obligations. She was educated at Cardinal O'Hara High School. She is a graduate of Penn State University with a Bachelor's Degree in Pre-Law as well as Widener University School of Law with a Juris Doctor. She has been active in the field of Elder Law, Medicaid Planning, Estate Planning, Estate Administration, Trust Administration, Civil Litigation, Veterans' benefits and health care law for twenty years.

Marie has worked for the Superior Court of Pennsylvania for The Honorable Vincent Cirillo, PJE and in her own private practice law office. She volunteered with the Delaware County Medical Society Health Literacy Coalition, St. John Chrysostom Parish, the Pennsylvania Veterans' Museum, the Delaware County Women's Commission, and acted as pro bono counsel on numerous criminal and civil litigation cases.
